What is wrong with this picture?

Funracer (quote)

"Had the shock lower bolt out, the upper control arm bolt loose but in place (thank goodness). After several hits with the air socket it had not come apart nearly as easily as the other side. Gave it one more good shot with my hand in the position shown in the picture above. Hand OVER the ball joint you are separating is a bad place to be as I rudely found out. The BJ let go with a loud noise and rotated straight up into the spring. On the way past my fingers it took off a small piece of skin. If my hand had been 1/4 inch more to the right it would have for sure at least broken my middle finger. Hand should have 1) had a glove on it and 2) been on the other side of the tool out of harms way. Lesson learned."
